By now the ACRA membership should have received their ballots for election of new board members. As previously stated in the July issue of the ACRA Edition, there are three positions open on the board. Currently, there are 18 board members, representing in equal numbers small, medium, and large firms. Brief biographical information on each individual and firm is printed below to assist you in your selection process. ACRA is sorry that this information was not available when ballots were mailed.

Small Firms

Lynn Larson, Larson Anthropological/Archaeological Services

Lynn Larson is the owner of Larson Anthropological/Archaeological Services, a cultural resources consulting firm in Seattle, Washington. Ms. Larson has extensive experience in conducting and/or managing the entire range of cultural resources investigations, including overviews, traditional cultural property studies, field reconnaissance, testing, and data recovery efforts for historic and hunter-fisher-gatherer archaeological sites, and contemporary Indian land use. Ms. Larson's experience encompasses Washington, Idaho, Oregon, and Montana, however, she is especially expert in the ethnohistory and history of Washington.

She has worked with many of the Indian Tribes in the region conducting traditional cultural property studies and providing expert witness testimony for historic and contemporary Indian land use. Ms. Larson also is active in local public educational efforts in archaeology and cultural resource management. She has managed the preparation of exhibits addressing specific historic and hunter-fisher-gatherer archaeological sites in King County and Washington, as well as made presenta-

Save The Eddie Rickenbacker House

Dear ACRA Members:

The Livingston Avenue Collaborative for Community Development (LACCD), Driving Park Area Commission (DPAC), Columbus Landmarks Foundation (CLF), and the Columbus Chapter of the American Institute of Architects (AIA) wish to announce the on-going drive to save and preserve the Eddie Rickenbacker House.

The Eddie Rickenbacker House, located on the east side of Columbus, Ohio, is a National Historic Landmark. This house was Mr. Rickenbacker's boyhood home. Mr. Rickenbacker, the most decorated combat pilot of World War I and later president of Eastern Airlines, was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor on September 25, 1918, for his performance engaging 7 German planes. By the end of World War I, he was credited for 26 balloon and aircraft kills.

Although some routine maintenance is past due, the house is still in good condition. However, the house is presently owned by an absentee owner and is in danger by neglect and vandalism. The present owner has threatened to sell the house to a privately-owned museum that will move the building completely out of the city. This course of action would remove the building completely out of its historic context. In addition, the Ohio State Historic Preservation Office has stated the house would lose its National Historic Landmark status.

The community groups are actively negotiating with the City of Columbus and the current owner to preserve the house on its historic site. It is our goal to develop a long-term master and rehabilitation plan to preserve the house for all generations. Like all preservation endeavors, this work requires time, volunteers, and money.

Our goal is to broaden the context of this endeavor from a local Columbus concern to a national historic aviation issue. This house, a National Historic Landmark, is directly associated with a world-famous American aviation leader, transportation pioneer, and business entrepreneur who started his own airline company. The house also represents a significant chapter in the changing of our country's foreign policy. Our country's entry into World War I marked the shift from isolationism to the beginning of superpower status.

We welcome your thoughts, time, and contributions to our efforts to save the Eddie Rickenbacker House. If anyone would like additional information, please contact:

tions to numerous local historical societies and interested groups. At the national level, Ms. Larson has served on the Society for American Archaeology (SAA) Task Force on Consulting Archaeology and currently is on the SAA Nominating Committee. Ms. Larson is a charter member of ACRA.

Loretta Lautzenheiser, Coastal Carolina Research, Inc.

Coastal Carolina Research, Inc. (CCR), is a private consulting firm specializing in cultural resources management. The home office is located in the small historic town of Tarboro, North Carolina, and a branch office is located in Richmond, Virginia. The firm currently employs 16 permanent staff including historic and prehistoric archaeologists, a zooarchaeologist, an architectural historian, and field and lab staff. Temporary staff is added as needed. In addition to our contract duties, the staff gives a number of public programs during any year, and has sponsored the excavation of a plantation site in our home county. The firm, in its tenth year of business, is wholly owned by Loretta Lautzenheiser.

Loretta Lautzenheiser received her B.S. in anthropology at the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga in 1979, Magna Cum Laude, and her M.A. in anthropology at the University of Tennessee in 1986. Mrs. Lautzenheiser has experience in managing projects involving Phase I, II, and III archaeological assessment, testing, and full-scale excavations. As president of Coastal Carolina Research, Inc., she has been responsible for the planning and implementation of over 160 archaeological projects. Mrs. Lautzenheiser founded CCR in 1988 after having worked for three years as staff archaeologist at NCDOT.

In addition to her experience as an archaeological investigator, she has extensive experience with state and federal regulations concerning cultural resources. Mrs. Lautzenheiser served for six years on the North Carolina National Register Review Committee. She was given the Caraway Award of Merit by Preservation North Carolina for her work in the archaeology of historic structures.

Medium Firms

Susan Chandler, Alpine Archaeological Consultants, Inc.

Susan Chandler is President of Alpine Archaeological Consultants, Inc., a cultural resource consulting firm based in Montrose, Colorado. She received her B.A. in southwest studies from Fort Lewis College in 1975 and her M.A. in anthropology (archaeology) from the University of Colorado at Boulder in 1977. Over the past 22 years, she has worked on projects in Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming, and El Salvador. Her primary focus these days, however, is on company management and overall project administration. She was the president of the Colorado Council of Professional Archaeologists from 1996-1997. She is a charter member of ACRA and has served on the ACRA Awards Committee for the past two years.

Karen Hartgen, Hartgen Archeological Associates, Inc.

Hartgen Archeological Associates, Inc., a leader in cultural resource management, provides a full range of services. The company has successfully completed over 1000 cultural resource studies including all phases of cultural resource management: Literature Review (Stage IA), Reconnaissance Survey (Stage IB), Excavation (Stage II), Eligibility Synopses for National Register Listings, Mitigation Proposals and Data Recovery (Stage III). Previous clients have included the New York State Office of Parks; Recreation and Historic Preservation; New York State Education Department; New York Power Authority; Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation; the Department of Housing and Urban Development, New York State Department of Environmental Conservation; New York State Department of Transportation; National Park Service; and many municipal governments, engineering firms and private organizations. The company qualifies as a Small Business, Women's Business Enterprise and Disadvantaged Business Enterprise in New York, New Jersey, Vermont, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Massachusetts, and Maine and has certified staff in Health and Safety Operations at Hazardous Materials Sites. The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, the Metropolitan Transit Authority, the New Jersey Transit Authority, the New York State Thruway Authority and the New York City School Construction Authority have also certified the firm.

Hartgen Archeological Associates, Inc., has been in business for over 20 years and is the largest privately owned archeological firm in New York State. Our experience includes highways, bridges, canals, utilities, landfills, subdivisions, and industrial parks. Our corporate headquarters are located at 27 Jordan Road, Troy, New York.

In 1973, Ms. Hartgen formed her cultural resource management consulting service and has directed the company for the past 22 years. She is a professional archeologist certified by the Society of Professional Archeologists (SOPA). Under her direction the company has undertaken many extensive mitigation projects on prehistoric, historic, and industrial sites. Specialized projects include the preparation of the State Historic Preservation Statewide maps and Statewide National Register maps.

Ms. Hartgen's involvement in archeology extends from the local level to the national level. She is a member and Past President of the New York Archaeological Council, President of the New York State Archeological Association, and a member of the Society of Industrial Archeology, Council on Northeast Historical Archaeology, SAA, SOPA and of course ACRA.

ACRA Annual Committee Reports

ACRA Awards Committee

Adrian S. White, Chair

The ACRA Awards Committee received six nominations for six different types of awards in 1997. Each nomination was examined by the committee and judged on their applicability for the award. We received nominations for the following categories:

1. Government
2. Research
3. Industry
4. Appreciation
5. Quality Product
6. Public Service

Mike Polk will notify the winners in all categories before the 1997 Annual ACRA Conference later this month. A full description of the winners and their respective awards will be included in the November ACRA Edition.

Government Relations Committee

Patrick O'Bannon, Chair

The Government Relations Committee was established at the Spring 1996 Board Meeting in Cincinnati. The Committee was charged with monitoring federal, state, and local legislative action as they relate to cultural resources, and working closely with ACRA's lobbyist, CEHP, to establish directions and priorities for the organization's lobbying efforts.

During the past six months the Committee established priorities for CEHP's lobbying efforts, emphasizing national issues of interest to the entire cultural resources community that had not been made priorities by other preservation organizations. The Committee monitored the continuing effort to revise 36 CFR 800, the regulations that implement Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act, commented on proposed revisions to the National Park Service's professional qualification standards, and investigated the implementation of the Bureau of Land Management's nationwide Programmatic Agreement. The Committee authorized ACRA's participation in several other lobbying efforts, including opposition to a proposal to dispose of historic military housing and an effort to limit the provisions of the Antiquities Act.

Worker Safety Committee

Charles M. Niquette, Chair

The Worker Safety Committee of ACRA was created in order to educate employers about laws and other requirements imposed on business by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), to promote safe working conditions for employers and employees involved in the business of CRM, and to sponsor workshops or other training sessions concerning worker safety. This committee is charged to carry out a number of tasks in pursuit of its overall goal of educating employers about OSHA and in promoting safe working conditions. Following are those tasks:

- Research OSHA and other national, and as possible, state and local laws concerning worker safety in order to best inform members of ACRA about their legal responsibilities and possible penalties for not abiding by those laws.
- Distribute, as possible and prudent, information to the membership concerning these laws. Also, distribute information concerning changes in these laws. This distribution of information is, obviously, dependent upon funds and time available to the committee. The use of E-mail distribution of information is encouraged due to its low cost, though distribution of brochures that may be available through

OSHA is also a possibility.

- Inform the membership about training and workshop opportunities around the country in the form of OSHA classes, Workers Compensation Insurance classes, or other training sessions. This information should be distributed through both the ACRA-L outlet as well as through the newsletter.
- Pursue and initiate partnerships with other organizations who may be able to provide training opportunities in OSHA specific to the CRM field. Plan, set up, and schedule such training sessions for the membership at the Annual Meeting or other times, as possible.
- Prepare a formal report and submit it to the President and Board of Directors at least twice each year on the activities, goals and achievements of the committee.

The committee chairperson is appointed by the President. The chairperson is directed to solicit the help of others from the membership of ACRA to be a part of, and help in the carrying out of the tasks charged to this committee. The numbers and persons chosen to be a part of the committee is the responsibility of the chairperson of that committee, but the President reserves the right to appoint others to the committee as necessary. The Worker Safety Committee is considered a STANDING COMMITTEE with no specific duration of existence. The chairperson of this committee is appointed for a period of one year, beginning and ending at the Annual Meeting. Renewal of the appointment (with the agreement of the current chairperson) or change to another chairperson is left to the discretion of the incoming President of ACRA.

For those members who subscribe to ACRA-L, you will remember a flurry of posts regarding worker safety and OSHA regulations earlier this year. As a result of these posts, and interest expressed by individual subscribers to ACRA-L, it was determined that there was sufficient interest in the northwestern portion of the country to propose that an ACRA workshop on worker safety be held in Seattle. Local arrangements were made by ACRA member firm Historical Research Associates, Inc., in Seattle and a course outline was developed by ACRA's partner in the venture, Woodward Clyde. Phil Jones of Woodward Clyde, the same person who taught the half-day workshop at last year's annual conference, agreed to serve as the instructor for the proposed, 3-day workshop. When the deadline for registration passed, we failed to attract the attention of a sufficient number of attendees to meet workshop expenses. As a result, the proposed workshop was cancelled.

Since then the committee has discussed the possibility of hosting another workshop elsewhere in the country, but to date no solid plans have been made. In addition, there has been some interest in the possibility of hosting a worker safety workshop to meet specific agency needs (both for staff and for agency contractors), but again, no firm proposals have been entertained by the committee.

Labor Relation Committee

Kevin Pape, Chair

Since the fall of 1995, ACRA's Labor Relations Committee has focused its energy on investigating issues of member concern associated with the Service Contract Act. Chief among these efforts has been ACRA's support of federal agency interests in modifying the Archaeological Technician position description and associated wage determinations. A summary of the committee's work on this issue was published in the June 1997 ACRA Edition under the heading "A Summary of ACRA's Involvement in the Archaeological Technician Position Description and Wage Determination Issue."

The publication of the Department of Labor's 3-tiered Archaeological Technician position description was a compromise effort. The position descriptions are imperfect and do not fully reflect specific language suggested by ACRA. Indeed, the structure of the modified position descriptions has been criticized generally and is under attack from certain segments of the CRM industry. However, the revisions more clearly distinguish between technical and professional duties. Furthermore, the revisions greatly improve the ability of all government agencies to procure cultural resource work at cost-effective rates which more accurately reflect prevailing practices. Implementation of the revised position descriptions and wage determinations is just beginning to take hold with federal contracting and it is not yet clear what will be the long-range effects on the CRM industry.

The Committee intends to monitor developments on the Service Contract Act front. However, there are certainly other issues of interest to the CRM community which may fall under the purview of the Labor Relations Committee. The Committee will solicit member input regarding other important issues and concerns during the Annual Meeting's Strategy Session on Sunday morning.

Business of CRM Committee

Patrick O'Bannon & Kevin Pape, Co-chairs

Following on the success of the pilot workshop held jointly in Columbus, Ohio, between ACRA and the Ohio Historic Preservation Office, ACRA submitted a proposal for a similar workshop to the California SHPO. The Committee is awaiting a response from the California SHPO and is conducting preliminary discussions with the Pennsylvania SHPO regarding their interest in hosting the workshop.

Education Committee Report

Joe Schuldenrein, Chair

The Education Committee has not been active over the past three months. We are still awaiting feedback from the Board regarding an article that was submitted in April for publication in the ACRA Edition. Once we obtain that feedback and the article is published, we plan to proceed with our longer term objectives to develop interactive programs with universities. Our activities to this point have been favorably viewed both within and beyond academic circles. It would be a shame to lose the momentum.

Legislative Update

ACRA/SOPA Weekly On-Line News
August 29, 1997

Capitol Comments:

There's a lot of activity on appropriations bills, which need to be completed by Sept. 30 (the new fiscal year begins Oct. 1). Of immediate concern for historic preservation is the Senate report language on the military construction appropriations bill relating to historic housing. As noted below, letters are needed to urge House and Senate conferees to drop the language. Not only is it bad policy for the military, but it could set an extremely bad precedent for other historic resources in the federal government. —Loretta Neumann

Appropriations Bills Percolating

(A) Interior $ to Senate Floor: The Fiscal 1998 Interior Appropriations, which has passed the House and cleared the Senate Appropriations Committee, is now awaiting consideration on the Senate floor after the recess. At least two contentious environmental amendments are expected, one by Sen. Dale Bumpers (D-Arkansas) to overturn a provision that would give western governors veto power over new federal environmental standards for mining on public lands, and one by Sen. Richard Bryan (D-Nevada) to cut funding from the Forest Service's road building budget.

(B) EPA $$ To Conference: The resolution of the differences between the House and Senate bills funding the Environmental Protection Agency for fiscal 1998 will occur soon as a conference committee meets to merge H.R. 2158 and S. 1034, the bills providing the appropriations for the Veterans Administration, HUD, and Independent Agencies (EPA is an independent agency). The difference in EPA's funding is $250 million - $7.23 billion in the House version and $6.98 billion in the Senate's. EPA is funded at $6.8 billion this year and President Clinton sought a 12 percent increase - to $7.65 billion - for fiscal 1998.

(C) House and Senate Differ on Agriculture $$: The House and Senate have differing conservation numbers for the fiscal 1998 Agriculture Appropriations bills (H.R. 2160 and S. 1033). In the House bill, funding for the Natural Resources Conservation Service is $758.74 million, a decrease of $769.86 million from last year and much less than President Clinton's request of $821.29 million. The Senate bill, would increase conservation funding to $828 million, which represents a $57 million increase over FY '97 and a $5.6 million increase over President Clinton's request. A statement issued July 16 by the Clinton administration says the House bill's reductions for conservation operations "could seriously impair USDA's ability to carry out critical conservation programs, including those enacted in the 1996 Farm Bill."

Military Housing Issue Heats Up

Next week, a conference committee is expected to meet to iron out differences between the House and Senate versions of the Fiscal 1998 Military Construction Appropriations. The Senate committee report continues to express language similar to that used in last year's report, stating that historic preservation requirements are "overburdening" the military housing accounts. Last year's report called for the services to review current inventories of historic quarters and to report on specific plans to remove all but the most significant historic homes. This year the Senate goes even further in directing the services to try to change the evaluation criteria for, and remove the properties from, the National Register of Historic Places.

In addition to a letter from the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation (see August 15 online news), several organizations have sent letters protesting the language. ACRA's President Mike Polk sent one to all conferees noting that as a result of last year's language, the services conducted the reviews and submitted their reports. "Not surprisingly," he says, "we've learned not only that historic houses represent just a small fraction of the total military housing supply, but also that the services themselves recognize the intrinsic as well as historic value of these homes, most of which were constructed of high quality, long lasting materials and are cost effective in terms of life cycle maintenance." Eric Hertfelder from the National Conference of State Historic Preservation Officers (NCSHPO) writes: "The Navy's report states that it manages 80,200 quarters of which 420 are listed on the National Register. Viewed in terms of the entirety of the number of housing units, historic quarters make up less than one percent." He notes that the Air Force stated in its report that, while unit costs may be higher, "the life cycle maintenance and repair costs are often smaller for historic housing due to the quality of the building materials used."

Action Needed: Additional letters to members of the conference committee from their home states would be extremely helpful in urging them to drop the Senate language. (Note, House conferees have not been appointed, but will be chosen early next week from among subcommittee members listed below.)

Senate: Republicans Conrad Burns, chairman (Montana), and Kay Hutchinson (Texas), Lauch Faircloth (North Carolina), Larry Craig (Idaho), Ted Stevens (Alaska). Democrats Patty Murray (Washington), Harry Reid (Nevada), Daniel Inouye (Hawaii) and Robert Byrd (West Virginia).

House: Republicans Ron Packard, Chairman (California), John Porter (Illinois), David Hobson (Ohio), Roger Wicker (Mississippi), Jack Kingston (Georgia), Mike Parker (Mississippi), Todd Tiahrt (Kansas), Zach Wamp (Tennessee). Democrats W.G. (Bill) Hefner (North Carolina), John Olver, (Massachusetts), Chet Edwards (Texas), and Norman Dicks (Washington), and Steny Hoyer (Maryland).

ACHP Tribal Meetings, Section 106 Regulations

Work has continued this summer on the proposed Section 106 regulations drafted by the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation. A key issue is the role of Indian Tribes in the review of federal undertakings. Council staff will be holding further tribal consultation meetings next week (Sept. 4-5) in Albuquerque, followed by a meeting in Washington D.C. the following week (Sept. 8-9). Meetings have also been held in Washington State and Minnesota. As expected, the major concerns involve the role of Indian tribes off tribal lands, especially with regard to traditional cultural properties. There is much sentiment among the tribes for their having the same level of participation as SHPOs, especially with regard to signing MOAs and No Adverse Effects determinations. The present draft of the ACHP recusation would require federal agencies to consult with tribes, but would not require tribal consent on MOAs and No Adverse Effects determinations.

The ACHP task force on regulations will be meeting in Washington D.C. Sept. 16 to prepare their recommendations for consideration by the full Council at its business meeting on Oct. 24 (location to be announced). The Council hopes to resolve these and other issues as it moves to finalize the regulations.

Public Housing Report Out For Comment

The National Park Service is releasing for comment a draft report, "Historic Context for Public Housing in the United States, 1933-1949." The report will be useful as a multiple property cover document as well as a source of information on public housing during that period. It contains a historical narrative discussing the development of public housing, including a legislative history of the programs and a discussion of local activities, as well as a discussion of architectural trends and treatments in association with the Federal programs and specific registration requirements on how to evaluate public housing for integrity, significance, etc. It also contains a bibliography and a database listing of all public housing projects by state and community. Comments on the report are due by the end of September.

The public housing report was prepared by consultants under a cooperative agreement with the NCSHPO using funding from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). Copies of the 126-page report are being sent to SHPOs, HUD agencies and local housing authorities. To obtain a copy of the report and further information, or to offer comments on the draft, contact Paul Lusignan with the National Register staff. phone: 202-343-1628, FAX: 202-343-1636, or E-mail Paul_Lusignan@nps.gov.

Sen. Craig to Introduce Forest Bill

In early September, Sen. Larry Craig (R-Idaho), chairman of the Senate Forests and Public Land

Management Subcommittee, plans to release the forest management bill that he has been circulating as a draft for eight months. Titled "The Public Land Management Responsibility and Accountability Restoration Act," the draft bill narrows the planning levels of the Bureau of Land Management and Forest Service, allows the public to petition agencies about a decision when new information arises, imposes new deadlines on filing appeals, authorizes the Forest Service and BLM to set prescribed fires and establishes a process for states to apply to Congress to manage federal lands for 10 years. The draft also would give the Forest Service and BLM more power over the Endangered Species Act on their lands. (No word yet, however, on whether the bill would affect BLM or Forest Service planning and management activities related to cultural resources.)

Shaune M. Skinner, ASC Group, Inc.

Shaune M. Skinner obtained her B.A. in art history and museum studies from the Defiance College in 1975 and received a M.A. in anthropology from Kent State University in 1979. Early employment included work for a variety of museums, such as the Ohio Historical Society (OHS), for 10 years, and various state agencies, including the Tennessee Department of Transportation, for two years. In 1986, Shaune left OHS and founded Archaeological Services Consultants, Inc. As president and principal investigator for ASC Group, Inc., Shaune has encouraged the growth of the company from three employees who performed only archaeological surveys in central Ohio, to 52 archaeologists, architectural historians, and historians working throughout the country. At the completion of the company's tenth year in business, the company name was changed to ASC Group, Inc., to better reflect the variety of services offered, including educational workshops, archaeological internships, microwear analysis, floral and faunal analysis, and obsidian hydration dating. Shaune has served on the Board of Trustees for the Ohio Archaeological Council and the Council for West Virginia Archaeology and has been a member of ACRA since its inception. Presently, Shaune is chair of the OAC's Legislative Issues Committee and is serving as a member of ACRA's Labor Relations Committee.
